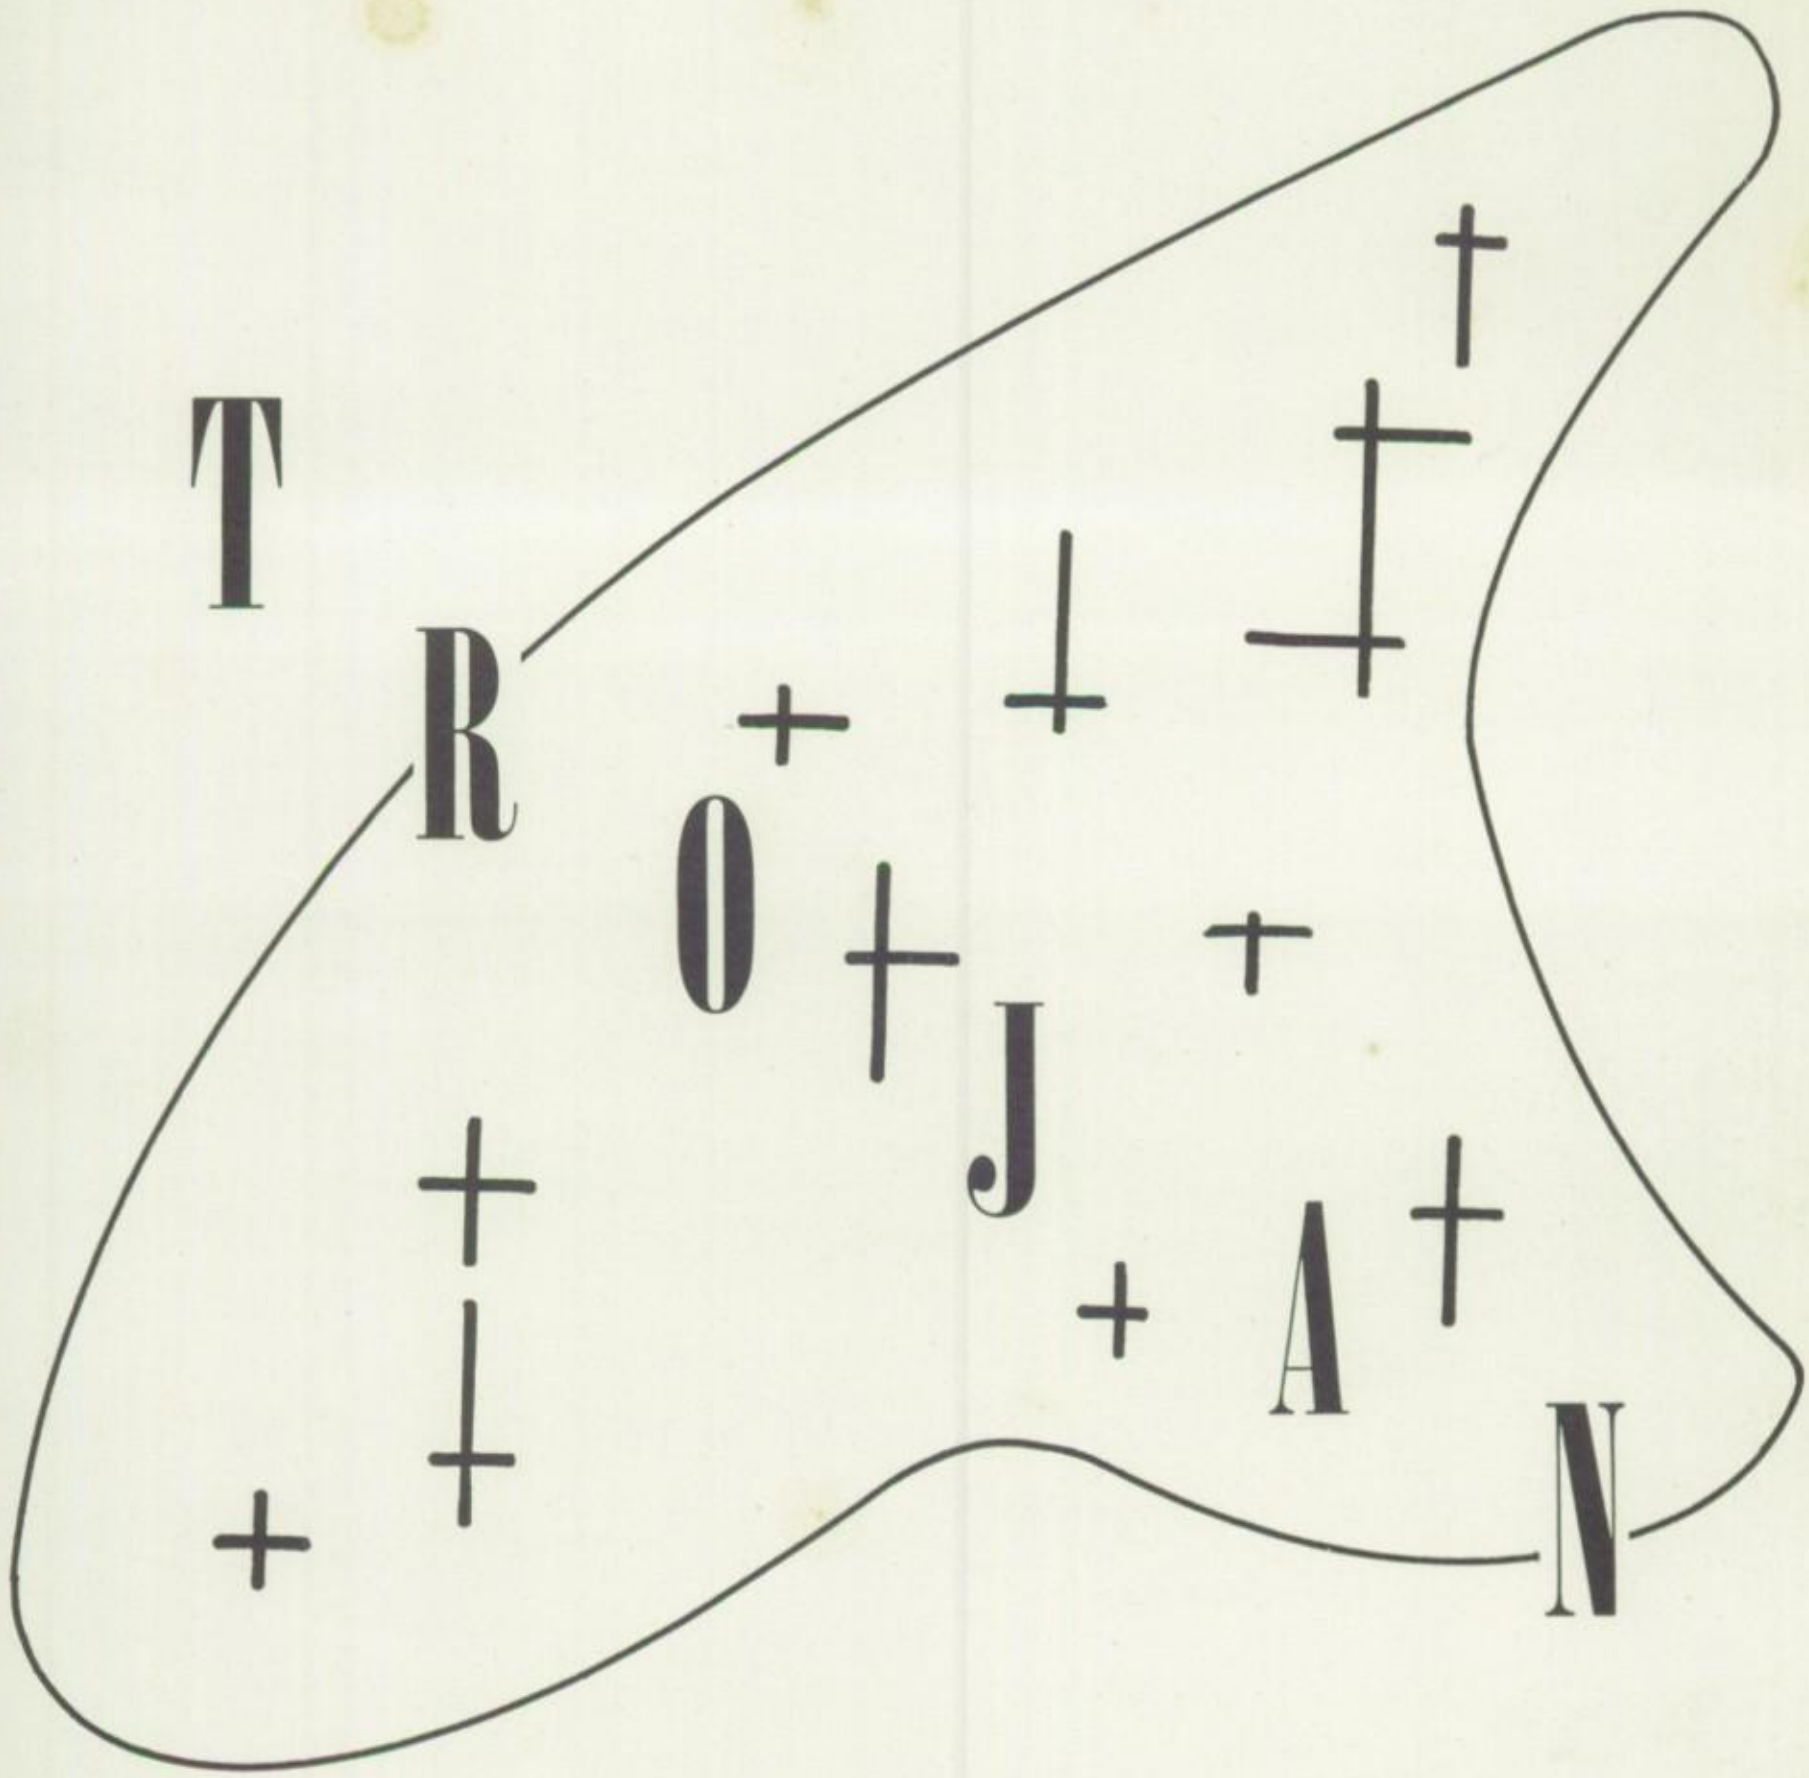
THE TROJAN

1958



EDITED BY

THE SENIOR CLASS

1958

Youth is an island bright in the sun
across the sea, but there is no returning:
the convoy moves relentlessly into the west
and over the wake the seagulls crying.
Better a hope lost than a life of lying;
of all man's wisdom, truth is best.

Small consolation, but the broken water glistens again the green stillness
and the clouds are buoyant in the blue.
Thus the vision, this the craving,
and in the no-man's sea between,
no flashing light, no harbour promised,
no course foretold but as the wind speaks
to the calling birds.

The island recedes, the familiar beauty fades,
brilliant as June once and maiden-fresh captive no more the hundred graces
led in delight along the dappled lanes,
with youth exalted in the morning sun.
All this is gone now, and with its daring,
the certain truth, the known shape of language
bright on the lips of men.

Farewell, then.
Time to turn from the dwindling vision,
the grey ghost of failure, the dusk of youth,
knowing that words are haggard movers
out of their time and place, resistant always to a new meaning. The old hunger stays to meet the new craving: all else is gone.
It is time to move.

Coach Williams

I've got him

The Trojans ended the 1957 season with a record of 3-4-1 and although this is not the best it is still good. Under the direction of a new coach and with an entirely new offense, the Trojans started the season by getting romped over by a non-league Toledo team; and ended by defeating another Toledo team in one of the most exciting games of the season. The team ended in a tie for third place in the league. Two times the Trojans played the league champions and both times held their score down more than any other team in the league, and scored on them more than any other team in the league.

The team will lose five boys through graduation. They are Danny Ford, Kenny Caris, Jim Kurfess, Jerry McCoy, and Lee Sprinkle; but next year's team should prove better because of experience.

Won	3	Lost 4 Tied	1

All eyes were on Queen Martha as she descended the stairs to become crowned.
